November 2024

I have had a busy travel schedule this fall with trips to Chicago, South Korea, Germany, Washington D.C., and my old stomping grounds at Penn. I appreciate these invitations and enjoy opportunities to connect with colleagues around the world, but all this travel really brings into sharp focus how much I value the community we have here in the INI.

The way we come together to support one another and advance our science through collaboration is truly unmatched. Even those who have moved on in their careers remain part of the fabric of our Iowa Neuroscience community, and we relish opportunities to re-connect, whether at a large meeting like SfN or when we visit each other at our respective institutions.

Too often we frame accomplishments in terms of grant dollars and journal impact factor, but the most valuable thing we have is our community and our greatest impact is in supporting one another.

Thanksgiving is a holiday about family and community—those we are born into and those we choose. I am grateful that each of you has chosen the Iowa Neuroscience community.

Happy Thanksgiving

Ted
